

Citation

IN HONOUR OF

KEVAN PANTON

EMPLOYEE OF THE QUARTER

Treasury Department's SUPERHERO – minus the cape but armed with stamina, and a signature smile that somehow makes even urgent financial crises feel manageable. Kevan consistently exceed the boundaries of his job description with the same ease that he handles monthly reports – precisely, reliably, and with an impressive lack of caffeine dependency.

He is focused, energetic, and relentlessly committed to delivering results. His initiative and follow-through are second to none. His service always prompt, his demeanour always helpful, and his impact consistently exceptional.

In a world of sticky notes and financial figures, he stands out – not just for precision, but for the unwavering integrity that underpins everything he does. A quiet guardian of confidentiality, discretion, and decency, he understands the responsibility that comes with access and trust. He doesn't just talk about ethics, he lives them.

He's an inspirer who has introduced new tools and smoother processes that not only improved efficiency but also make work feel a little more enjoyable, making collaboration effortless and understanding that individual success means little if the team isn't moving forward together.

He is genuinely invested in the department's goals, the University's vision, and the people around him. His unquestionable reliability and his ability to get things done – regardless of the clock – remain a quiet force behind many of the department's successes.